
OUTLINE

Topic: The relevance of behaviorism theory today.

Introduction: Behaviorism achievements find various applications in the beginning of the 21st century, although its methodology started developing in the early 1900s (Watson et al. 12).

Thesis statement: Behaviorism theory can still be traced under many conditions.

Body paragraphs:

1. Behaviorism is widely applied in educational settings.
 - Behaviorism affects the development of the person.
 - It helps to strengthen the positive traits of the person.
 - Behaviorism is critical for achieving better educational goals and results.
2. Family issues can be considered in the framework of behaviorism.
 - Behaviorism is critical for changing and modifying behavior of family members.

- Behaviorism is essential in dealing with the reinforcement of behavioral patterns among different generations.
 - Behaviorism addresses behavioral disorders having an effect on family violence.
- 3. The effects of behaviorism within the workplace can explain the successful work of a company.
- Behaviorism is important for understanding organizational behavior.
 - Behaviorism affects leadership and motivation.
 - Behaviorism relates to the past experiences for interviews.

Conclusion

Behaviorism is critical for many areas of living and can be successfully applied to reach better results in various areas of everyday life such as education, economy, and family relations.